HE in Palestine: Governance

- Higher Education in Palestine expanded significantly after the establishment of the PNA in 1994
- HEIs are largely autonomous bodies that were partially regulated by Higher Education Council prior to 1994
- Ministry of Higher Education was first established in 1996 and later merged under Ministry of Education and Higher Education in 2002. The two ministries split again in 2012, only to be merged in 2013.

Financing Higher Education

- ▶ Most HEIs depend on student tuition fees to cover 60-70% of their operation budgets.
- ▶ Economic and political situation has made it impossible to raise tuition fees even to keep up with inflation.
- ▶ Palestinian Authority allocates part of its budget for higher education to public universities but is not always able/willing to distribute allocated funds.
- ▶ Universities depend on fundraising to meet annual operating budget and capital development, limiting their ability at long term planning.

BIRZEIT UNIVERSITY

- ▶ Birzeit University [BZU] is Palestine's first independent not-for-profit institution of higher education governed by an autonomous Board of Trustees. It embodies a success story, inspirational to all Palestinians. Since 1972, BZU has grown to become a leading university in the Middle East, on par with the very best. Our distinguished faculty combine scholarship and professional experience as former officials, diplomats, professionals, researchers, and scientists. Our students come from diverse backgrounds made possible by the university's commitment to provide equal opportunities for deserving individuals.
- ▶ BZU characteristic olive green campus lies on a hilltop on the outskirts of Birzeit, seven kilometers away Ramallah. It covers 40% of the 80 hectare-site and is constantly expanding and modernizing through generous donations from Palestinian philanthropists from the homeland and the Diaspora.

Challenges

- ❑ Language Barriers
- ❑ Accreditation of qualification
- ❑ Travel and Visa Issues ( the need to offer three-month semesters to align with visa duration for international students)
- ❑ Lack Interpersonal skills
- ❑ Lack of adequate institutional support system
- ❑ Academic Calendar
- ❑ Cultural challenges
- ❑ Financial challenges

Challenges

Movement and access restrictions

- ▶ Inability to recruit academics and students with foreign passports
- ▶ Foreign academics are less willing and able to consider taking up teaching and research posts in Palestinian institutions of higher education due to the arbitrary and unpredictable restrictions on entry and residency to which they may be subjected. ( Academia Undermined, field research done by Ruhan Nagra, 2013)

Impact

- ▶ Limited scope for university study
- ▶ Dependence on a small local pool of knowledge: Palestinian universities' difficulties in recruiting foreign faculty means universities have to resort to the very small pool of local Palestinian talent, despite the fact that Ministry of Education and University officials confirm that there is a significant reservoir of highly accomplished Palestinian academics working abroad ready to come as either permanent faculty or visiting professors.
- ▶ Recycling of knowledge and teaching methodologies
- ▶ Limited

Impact

- ▶ confines the experience of Palestinian students to a much narrower and more insular one than most universities worldwide, systematically limiting students' opportunities for self-realization and exploration. Interaction with international faculty who bring a multiplicity of perspectives and experiences is an invaluable contribution to an enriching education for its students, and to the creation of a true university experience, with all that the word signifies of diversity inclusiveness, and open, positive attitudes towards other cultures.

On Cosmopolitanism in Higher Education Institutions ( Former University President)

- ▶ Universities try to be cosmopolitan and it doesn't serve our students well that they are educated only by Palestinians. Like all self-respecting universities worldwide - we would like our university to be cosmopolitan both in faculty and student composition and in creating attitudes that are cosmopolitan amongst our students. I use the word cosmopolitan in the good sense of the word - in the sense of being open to other cultures, being adaptable, being willing to try and willing to listen and learn from other cultures and interact with them positively. We're thwarted in that effort of inculcating cosmopolitanism by the uniformity of our faculty. We would like to have foreign faculty - not just Palestinian academics holding foreign passports but also foreign academics - because that is part and parcel to what a university is. The word university in most languages indicates inclusiveness, universality, and we're consigned to a very narrow university experience that we provide our students in that respect, because of these difficulties.” (Birzeit University Former President)

Improving the Present Situation of Mobility and Exchange

- ❑ Explicit internationalization strategy
- ❑ Developing information and support systems (administrative, linguistic, social, educational)
- ❑ Increased presence and visibility of Palestinian HEIs in EU countries
- ❑ Increased support for enabling foreign faculty and students who wish to join Palestinian HEIs
- ❑ Capacity building for beneficiaries especially students in life and interpersonal skills
